

SUNNY DAYS AT THE TRACK

Life Among the Horsemen at This Season Wears Its Brightest Colors.

Fat Dickerson's Costly Dog and Fast Horses—Clips Some of the Fivers Are Showing—Turf Notes.

The race track now presents a very pleasing appearance. The woods to the west are inviting, as is the deep verdure everywhere to be seen; the clover, especially, surrounded by the track, makes the whole scene look like a garden. The track soil is now better, and from ten to fifteen animals are continually going. On the north side, in the edge of the grove, gather several carriages each day under the shady trees, and very happy little parties, who are fond of looking at fine animals, spend hours there. Col. Pat Dickerson generally dispenses all news relating to the speedy animals, as well as fascinates them with a $250 fee for which he owns, and always carries with him. No one can get away from the track without either seeing or hearing about Mr. Dickerson's string of fifteen horses, which certainly is a fine one.

There is Little Frank, who can step it in 2:19, and Jubilee Chief, 2:26, while Little Turkey turned Pat's face white with excitement, only yesterday, by clipping off one-eighth of fourteen seconds. Nellie Hay, the grey belonging to the Hays brothers, of the Model clothing store, can beat 2:20 this year, and is thought to be a winner. A young filly named at bright as a blossom, and will likely come out of the circuit with a "spoonful of pie."

Among the other clips made Friday were Jack's eighth in 2:27, L. B. Curtis's mile in 2:24, and Mart's eighth in 2:23. Ben Walker's string of twenty-five is the largest one stable at the track, and possibly contains a larger galaxy of prominent horses. Among them are Enna, 2:19; Dock, 2:24; at four years old; Boone Wilson, pacer, 2:20; L. B. Curtis, 2:24; Richmond, 2:27; Jim Wilkes, 2:27; F. Adams, 2:20; a three-year-old; Graydon, 2:24; Esmeralda, two-year-old, 2:25; Mares, a full sister of Belmont, 2:24; Way Not, Lucy A., and a number of others constituting the flower of the barn, so to make up the total. There are now about three hundred horses in the field, with everybody, trainer and stableman, as busy as bees. "No more dominoes till after the fair" is the motto at the track.

Senator Stanford, in a conversation with Sam Gamble, says: "I have become convinced that the season of 1893 will be the most profitable one for the harness brigade that has ever taken place in America. There has been a great change in the East. Last year while I was in Washington there seemed to be no attention paid to trotters whatever, but this spring there was nothing else in the horse line talked about. So far as I am concerned I pay little attention to my runners, but take great interest in the trotters, and intend to strengthen the stock on the farm. The recent depression in prices has discouraged breeders. They should look ahead, however, for bright times are in sight. The racing associations are booming the racing of harness horses, and by giving big purses are increasing their earning capacity and enhancing the intrinsic value of the breed. Prices will improve and become firmly established, and breeders will be enabled to get rich returns on their investments."

At Rushville, Ind., Thursday night of last week, the well and favorably known trotting mare, Nelly S., 2:24, was destroyed by fire, along with a number of training stables, at Riverside Park, in that city. By the death of this mare Indiana loses one of its brightest prospects for sensational honors, and the family she hails from a scion that it can ill afford to part with. She was bred by Mr. Joseph Stiers, of Rushville, and at the time of her death was owned by Charles Westcott, of Richmond, Ind. Nelly S. was an exceedingly fast and game race mare, and only a half mile, so before her death trotted a half mile in 1:56, a 2:10 gait. Mr. Westcott, it is said, was under contract to sell her for the sum of $4,000, and the sale was completed except delivery of the mare to her new owner. In breeding Nelly S. was a typical Indiana bred mare, being by Commander 2001, son of Blue Bull 75, dam by Rose's Tom Crowder.

Robert Bonner, one of the deepest thinking men identified with trotting interests, in a recent interview sizes up matters as follows: "There was a time when I thought mile heats, three in five, necessary to preserve and develop gameness, but now, when we have made such progress in breeding, I believe that the system of trotting should be changed. We need dashes at various distances, and mile heats, best two in three, to hold popular interest and enthusiasm. The agitation of the distance will do good, and it strikes me that the proposed change to seven-fives and one hundred yards should be given a universal trial."

Fred Kissel will start on the summer campaign, with his Dallas and Pointer, next week. He has had both horses at the fair grounds, and they have shown up in excellent shape in the preliminary work which they have had. Pointer, one day last week, went a mile in 2:23, which is the fastest one that has been run on the track this season. Dallas was jogged an easy three-quarters, the other day, and then did the last quarter in 1:25 1/2 seconds, which is around a "nine rail," and his owner is correspondingly elated. Dallas starts first at Connersville.

The first meeting of the Columbus O. Driving Association will be held July 4 to 7. They have offered $8,000 in purses for the trotters and the pacers of the country, and they are $500 for the good ones. This will be one of the best meetings in the Buckeye State. They will have seventeen races in the four days. The entries for this meeting close June 24.

Turf Notes.

The Connersville, Ind., entries closed yesterday. Jocko, 2:16, was about the first pacer driven to a pneumatic tired road wagon. Country Girl, 2:17, has been bred to Raven Wilkes, 2:20. She is pacing very fast.

The Roscobol filly, owned by U. K. Guthery, of Marion, O., is surely a great pacing prize.

McGinty, 2:14, the Indianapolis stallion, was distanced at Pittsburgh last week in 2:15.

Tasco, 2:14, has served already between fifty and sixty mares. His books close July 1.

Geers says Hal Dillard is in first-class fix, and that 2:10 is likely to be his mark this year.

Start has two more pacers in his string—Ella Brown, 2:19, and Reflector, 2:10—both from Tennessee.

The races at Baltimore, Elmhurst and Wapakoneta were postponed Tuesday, the first day on account of rain.

The date of the closing entries in the Brown County Agricultural Society, of Mt. Sterling, Ill., is Tuesday, July 25.

At Baltimore, Wednesday, Reality, the Indiana mare, again reduced her record. She won the race easily. Best time, 2:23.

Charles P. seemed to like the meet at Dayton, last week, better than his competitor, for he won there after a struggle in a seven-hat race.

Alfred Ribbey, of New Harmony, Ind., is the owner of Grey Girl, 2:21, and owns her simply because she is good and much faster than her record.

Charles Kohlhorst, of Cambridge City, is said to be doing well with his trio of Gemetta Wilkes. He has some in training that will be out later on.

Mascot's mile of 2:04 at Pimlico, Baltimore, Md., last week, is surely an indication that he has all his last year's speed with more strength to keep him, for he did the mile with perfect ease.

William M. Forth, the old owner of Rowdy Boy, the fast pacer, is situated at the Evansville, (Ind.) Driving Park.

Florette, the three-year-old sister to Roy Wilkes, is said to be very promising at the pace, in fact she is showing faster at the same age than did the invincible Roy. The Wabash Fair and Trotting Circuit, with their $35,000 in stakes, purses and specials begin at Jerseyville, Ill., July 11, in their circuit programme. It is a good one.

Ol Lehman, the Indianapolis starting judge, has been engaged to start the races at the Columbus O. State fair, and also the Trotting Association's races at that point.

Calie S., 2:23 1/2 (2), has a son by Jay Foot, 2:28 (3), son of Jay Bird. Both the sire and dam are owned by Judge T. J. Terhune, of Indianapolis. Here is a youngster that ought to prove a record breaker.

There were two hustlers in the free-for-all pacing race at Dayton, O., last week. Five Green drove the day-long Hustler. The hustlers did not win the race, but they made the others get a move on them to win it.

On July 4 and 5 Evansville gives a running meeting, and money to the amount of $2,500, for which there will be no entrance fee. This will be the chance for some of the boys to see what metal they have in their unruly horses.

Blair & Baker, on Saturday, shipped a carload of horses to Pennsylvania, among which it is stated there is not a slow horse, all having a record of a mile in less than three minutes and all horses of high breeding. Among the number are several fast pacers—one "Cyclone Bill."

In the summer of 1890 J. Roby says the best pacing race he ever witnessed took place at Rochester, N. Y., between the pacers Sorrel Dan, 2:14; Mattie Hunter, 2:14; Sleepy Tom, 2:12; Rowdy Boy, 2:12; and Lucy. It required six heats to settle the question, Sorrel Dan winning the race by taking the first, second and sixth heats in 2:14, 2:14 and 2:16.

R. Riggs, Princeton, Ind., has a fine son of the King, the greatest show horse in the Wilkes family. While this son does not look quite as fine as his sire, the time will come when no doubt he will, for as yet his growing appearance does not round him up and make him look as smooth as he will when five years of age. He, aside from his being a good looking horse, is quite a trotter and with only a fair show would trot fast.

BRIEF TALES AND GOSSIP

Bit of Philosophy Upon the Ethics of Carrying Bundles in Public Places.

Street-Car Dilemma—The Child's Idea of It—Where Tact Was Wanting—Various Short Stories.

The etiquette of bundle-carrying is one that does not greatly trouble the people of Indianapolis. Most of them presumably object to loading themselves down with bulky and unwieldy packages, and there is a common prejudice against the carrying of a bundle wrapped in newspapers. The reason for this objection to a printed covering for one's belongings, and the corresponding preference for one of manilla, is by no means occult. The newspaper bundle carries with it a suggestion of old shoes, or unlaundered garments, and the bearer feels that he is betraying to his fellow-men the limitations of his intimate apparel and his small personal economies, and through unrighteous pride allows his self-respect to waver temporarily. But with this exception the average Indianapolis man and woman carry about with them, in entire secrecy, tolerably large bundles when occasion seems to call for it. A writer on "good form" in an Eastern publication recently laid down the law that no gentleman, and, particularly, no lady, should be seen carrying packages of any sort on the street, but he was not aware of the fact that in Indianapolis the habit of conveying to their homes purchases of many varieties other than those named without conscious loss of caste. The freedom in the fair way to the store. The rising generation is being trained to a stricter code. When they teach it in the schools that bundle-carrying is unpardonable the custom receives an unexpected jog, and it is do for the schools, or, at least in one school of the city, as one young woman can testify. She went to a school where the principal and the teachers were anxious to display her purchases at home as soon as possible took her dry goods bundle on her arm and hastened joyously on her way. Presently she met a teacher, but that personage, instead of returning her cheerful salutation, looked at her with a cold, stony glare and gave no sign of recognition. Next morning the teacher made an address to her school on the general subject of etiquette and in the course of it remarked impressively that if her young ladies pulled so far forgot themselves as to appear in the street carrying bundles she desired them not to speak to her should they chance to meet. Some of these young ladies now speak during the day of their teacher as a snob—and some carry no more bundles.

Simoon Coy was reminiscing, a few days ago, on the politics of the past. "Politics to-day is exceedingly tame to what it was along in 1875. Then it was politics for sure, and every man hallooed and fought for his party, and you knew your neighbor's politics as well as your own. I remember one time during that year both parties had advertised big meetings to be held at Shelbyville, and, as each was striving to outdo the other, it was, of course, to be expected that the attendance would be enormous. Excursions were run to the place on every road. Feeling ran very high, and especially down in old Shelby. Well, when the day came the projectors of the two rival meetings recognized the fact that it would never do to have the two crowds come together, and entered into an arrangement whereby the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Republicans, after listening to long speeches, began to get dry. Then, to their consternation, they discovered that the brewers that were to supply the Democrats were to stay on the south side and the Republicans on the north side of the town. This was all well enough for the sake of peace, and was perfectly agreeable until along